

80_Recommendations

- Cognitive Abilities of people with Alcohol Use Disorder is deficient and hence requires remediation
- Neuro-behavioural Abilities of people with Alcohol Use Disorder is deficient and hence requires remediation
- It is necessary to create awareness in the general public towards the harmful effects of alcohol use
- Effective remediation strategies for people with Alcohol Use Disorder have to be developed
- The therapeutic module (HACRT) developed by the researcher can be used for cognitive remediation in people with Alcohol Use Disorder
- Future studies can be conducted replicating the present study including a larger sample, female participants, people undergoing different types of treatment
- The developed therapeutic module (HACRT) can be applied in remediating people with other Cognitive deficits