COIMBATORE, MAY 8:

The Department of Printing Technology under the School of Engineering at Avinashilingam Institute for Home Science and Higher Education for Women organised a scholarship distribution ceremony to honour academic excellence and encourage students pursuing printing technology courses.

Vice-Chancellor Dr. Bharathi Harishankar

presided over the function and highlighted the importance of industry-academia collaboration in enhancing students' career prospects and professional development.

Scholarships worth Rs.10,000 each were distributed to deserving students in the presence of their parents and faculty members.

S. Harini, a second-year B.E. Printing Technology student, received the scholarship from A. Senthil Kumar, president of the Tamil Nadu Master Printers Association and Pollachi Master Printers Association.

S. Sivaranjani, a first-year B.E. Printing and Packaging Technology student, received the scholarship from M. Balagopal and P. Sanjeevi of the Namakkal Master Printers Association.

The event was attended by Coimbatore Printers Association office-bearers including president Jankaraj, vice-president H. Nazar and secretary Jammal.

Dr. U. Jarinabi Bee, IQAC coordinator, Dr. S. Sivakumari, dean of the School of Engineering, and Dr. A. Arulmozhi, Head of the Department of Printing Technology, also participated in the programme.

A felicitation session and interaction with industry experts were held as part of the event, offering students valuable insights into career opportunities in the printing and packaging sector.

Organisers said the programme further strengthened industry-academia collaboration and motivated students to excel in their academic and professional pursuits.
